OBJECTIVES

The participant begins as an ordinary person in the ordinary world, and receives a call to enter a strange, unknown world. If he accepts the call, he must face tasks and trials, sometimes alone and sometimes with assistance from others. These trials are both external and internal, and he is changed for the better in the process. In the end, the participant turns into a hero and receives a gift and then must decide what to do with it. True heroes return to share their gifts with others, often facing life-threatening challenges on the way back home.
